Guidepost Solutions Launches Sport and Entertainment Practice

*Balancing security, safety and the spectator experience;
Harvey Schiller and Gene Washington to advise*

New York, NY – May 24, 2011 – Guidepost Solutions LLC announced today the launch of its new Sport and Entertainment practice. Guidepost Sport and Entertainment offers a full range of security and risk management solutions for sport and entertainment facilities, leagues, major events and professionals. Central to Guidepost Sport and Entertainment's approach is to achieve an optimal balance of safety, security, and compliance to best prevent, prepare for and react to today's uncertainties.

“We’re bringing together the expertise of a strong leadership team and over 50 professionals dedicated to providing the best security and risk management solutions to the industries we serve,” said Andrew O’Connell, CEO of Guidepost Solutions. “Our goal is to give our clients the confidence that they can operate securely and safely, today and for the long term.”

The Guidepost Sport and Entertainment practice’s services include investigations, compliance, and anti-fraud capabilities, along with the design and implementation of security systems and solutions and the development of emergency and crisis management plans. The practice also provides security and protection services for athletes, entertainers and fans.

Guidepost Sport and Entertainment will be led by Dan Donovan, Director. Mr. Donovan, formerly the CEO of Inocon Group, has extensive experience providing crisis management and security services to the NFL, college and professional stadiums and Olympic organizers, amongst others. Mr. Donovan will work closely with Matthew V. Wharton, Guidepost’s Senior Vice President & Chief Strategy Officer and a 30 year veteran consulting on enterprise security.

Mr. Wharton’s experience in stadium security design and implementation compliments his extensive track record in the gaming and hospitality markets. The practice’s offering will integrate with Guidepost’s existing low voltage technology, design and management services unit, which operates as SafirRosetti – a Guidepost Solutions Company – and serves a broad set of industry sectors.

“This practice provides an unprecedented total solution set,” said Dan Donovan, Director of Guidepost Sport and Entertainment. “With our wide array of services and capabilities, we can address a multitude of client needs and situations.”

Also advising the practice is Dr. Harvey Schiller, who is an Advisory Board member for SolutionPoint International, the corporate parent of Guidepost Solutions. Dr. Schiller is former Chairman and CEO of YankeeNets, a member of the NCAA Executive Committee, and has served as President of Turner Sports, Inc., Executive Director and Secretary General of the United States Olympic Committee and Commissioner of the Southeastern Conference. Dr. Schiller will serve as a consultant to Guidepost Sport and Entertainment. He provides an extensive background in risk management and business solutions and broad expertise in sports management and entertainment.

Fellow SolutionPoint Advisory Board Member Gene Washington will also act as an advisor to Guidepost Sport and Entertainment. Mr. Washington’s experience as a former Director of Football Operations for the National Football League, San Francisco 49er player, and Assistant Athletic Director for Stanford University, provides a broad set of skills and expertise for the practice’s clients.

The Guidepost Sport and Entertainment team has worked on key projects including: the new Yankee Stadium, New Meadowlands Stadium, Super Bowls XXXIX-XLV, NCAA, NBA, USTA, 2002-2010 Olympic Organizing Committees, International Olympic Committee, Atlanta Braves, New York Yankees, Stanford University, Georgia Tech University, University of Georgia, University of Phoenix Stadium, Brooklyn Arena (New York), and San Francisco Conservatory of Music.
